

Tinley to Enter Baseball League

Tinley Park will enter a baseball league composed of eight teams if present plans materialize as advocated. A meeting of representatives from eight surrounding communities will be held this Thursday evening at Dolton, to form a league and arrange scheduled games for the season.

The towns invited, who in all probability will join are, Homewood, Harvey, Dolton, Thornton, Lansing, Matteson, Crete and Tinley Park. Selby Hirsch, Clarence Goessel and Rudolph Detweiler will represent Tinley Park at this meeting.

As soon as the weather permits the local baseball season will open. The married men or Lions Club will be the first opponents.

Dr. Ickstadt Buys Scheer Building

The Triangle Club will have to move out of their present headquarters as the Scheer building has been sold to Dr. Ickstadt. The club is considering the Community Hall or the Andres Hall as a prospective club room.

The Triangle Club will hold a bridge party and social next Wednesday evening in the Club room. All members and friends are invited to attend.

Tinley Garden Club A Prize Winner

Tinley Park can be very proud because on Wednesday, March 28 at 5 p. m., WMAQ announced over the radio the prize winner of the Shadow Boxes at the Chicago Flower Show held at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago.

Tinley Park received a white badge which is an honorable mention so the description of their display was given and of course the name.

The Tinley Park Garden Club is the baby club of Illinois, having only affiliated Feb. 25, 1928 but the ladies are to be congratulated for having the courage to go into the show at the last minute, because some of the clubs had three months to work on their models of an English Home and Garden. Be sure to visit the next Flower Show so as to see the Model English Home.

Gitt Shop Is Quitting Business

It is with keen regret that we note that the Tinley Park Gift Shop which has been conducted by Mrs. Wallace B. Combs in the Schreiber building, is going out of business due to the ill health of Mrs. Combs. The stock is being sold at a sacrifice to close out the business. Mrs. J. Keleher is in charge of the Shop at present. The legion of friends of Mrs. Combs wish her a speedy recovery.

May Number and Mark Tinley Sts.

The Tinley Park Lions Club is planning to make a real city out of this town. The latest plans are to number the houses and to name the streets and have street markers bearing the names of streets erected along the streets.

The Lions Club has many other worth while ideas and plans in the making.

Contract Let

On April 14th a contract was let to Sternberg & Co., of Piper City, Illinois for $1600 for cleaning out six miles of the drainage ditch running thru Bremen township at the north edge of Tinley Park into Orland township.

Coming 3 Night Play

A big social event is coming off in Tinley Park the forepart of May when the Dramatic Club of the Tinley Park M. E. church will produce their much heralded play "Yimmie Yonson's cob" which will be presented at the Community hall for 3 nights, namely May 10, 11 and 12. Remember the dates and watch the Tinley Park Times for further details each week.

Here Are The Answers

April 16, 1928

Editor of News-Bulletin, Mokena, Illinois.

The questions in your issue of April 13, must not pass unanswered, even though the honorable taxpayer hid behind questions as well as the signature, to find fault with existing conditions in Mokena schools.

Again reading between the lines, one reads a lack of knowledge of Illinois School Law, and a sad, very sad, lack of interest in the schools of Mokena.

1. Tax rate. The assessed value of the two districts are: Frankfort $901,469; Mokena - $590,045.

2. The third year of high school was provided because a demand seemed to exist for it. The Board strove to serve the community.

3.-4.-5. Same as above No. 2.

6. There are no plans for a new building. The Board is considering plans but has made no selection. Any other method is impossible.

7. The building site is the best to be had for school purposes. Good sidewalks can still be built.

8. The Mokena grade school is second to none in Will County or Cook County, in its class.

9. District No. 160 (Marti School) determines its own school arrangements.

10. District No. 160 gets better results by the present method.

11. Same as No. 10.

12. Mokena has a good board of directors, unusual, in fact. They devote much energy to the schools and endure much adverse criticism because they are willing to do their duty as members of the community.

Dear Tax-payer, throw away your hammer and buy a horn. Be a booster.

August Maue, Supt. of Schools
Per R. H.

A Statement

As I was the only one of the directors running for office this time I feel that it is my duty to bring this matter up before the community and speak a word in defense of my co-workers and myself.

It seems rather strange that our friend, The Tax-payer, waited until the last minute to fling these questions before the public, in other words why was this article not brought before the people in time to give one a chance to answer them and answer them satisfactorily. I am sure that after filling this position as school director for three years I should by this time be in a position to answer questions regarding the school in a satisfactory manner and without hesitation.

I, as well as the other directors, are working for the welfare of the community and not for ourselves. Do we get anything out of this position? NO! Yet we strive to do our best in spite of the severe criticism and kicks we constantly receive.

I have only to say, as well as the will suffice, that I, as well as the other two directors, are working for the welfare of the people and our object is to serve the community.

It is needless for me to answer these questions as August Maue, our school superintendent, has already endeavored to explain this school proposition to you, and I feel that after reading his answer to the questions recently asked that you will be fully enlightened in regard to this matter.

I want to take this opportunity of thanking those who supported me so kindly, and I will endeavor to serve you to my utmost ability, and hope that this explains everything satisfactorily, clearly and fully to the fault-finding Tax-payer.

Yours truly
Richard Hensel

Village Party Wins At Frankfort

The Frankfort village election held last Tuesday was a real live affair, two contesting tickets adding much pep. The Village Party won.

BOOK

SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND

Mokena is being advertised all over the country and yet no one here knew about it until C. M. Cleveland of Mokena went to St. Petersburg, Florida to spend the winter. While in that city Mr. Cleveland ran across an advertisement of a paper house in which a certain brand of book paper was called Mokena Paper. Mr. Cleveland found out that this paper was being handled by Bonestell and Company of San Francisco, Cal. He forwarded this information together with cuts used by this company in advertising Mokena paper to the News-Bulletin. The Editor got in touch with the San Francisco firm and asked if they had any information as to the history of Mokena and how the book paper in question happened to be called Mokena book.

This concern advised that they had no information on the subject but suggested that the firm of Jessup & Moore in Philadelphia be communicated with as they own the Mokena Water Mark and would undoubtedly be familiar with the history of this name.

The Editor in turn wrote to the Philadelphia firm and received this interesting reply:

Mokena A. & P. Mgr. Removed

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Hickey who have been managing the Mokena A. & P. store since Mr. Perryman was removed, were greatly surprised Monday night when the news came that Mr. Hickey had been removed by the A. & P. management. Mr. Hickey has taken up a job in Lockport. Mr. Hickey has been with the A. & P. company about a year. He ran the Tinley A. & P. store last summer while Mr. St. Germain the local manager was on his vacation.

New School Planned For Mokena

Plans are being formulated for a new school building for Mokena. Plans for the new building have been submitted to the Mokena school board but nothing definite has been decided upon. It is proposed however, to have the new building equipped with a gymnasium, community hall, stage, etc., and to make it up to date in every way. It is proposed to build the

"We are in receipt of your favor of March 12th. In reply would say that the writer was in the jobbing business in Chicago for many years and in course of his work had occasion to go frequently to Joliet. On this trip, his attention was called to the name of your city -MOKENA- which struck him as a very attractive name. When we were making a new line of deckle edge paper, it occurred to him and he used it. We do not know anything further about the name than it is on the signboard at your station. There is no question but what it is an Indian name."

Even tho the origin of the name MOKENA is lost in the vistas of the past, yet this name is going forth to all parts of the United States. Very few persons, perhaps none, who use MOKENA paper know that there is a town by the same name and where it is located. It would be a splendid idea if Mokena could hook up with this nation wide advertising it is receiving and get a place in the sun.

structure on the one story unit plan, that is to provide for building any additions that the future needs of the community may warrant.

A special election will be called to submit the bond issue proposition to the voters of this school district.

Bond salesman have already made propositions to the school board for the sale of these bonds.

Hensel Re-elected School Director

Great interest was aroused in the school election at Mokena Saturday afternoon and evening. Cars were used to get the voters of the district out to the polls. The fight was on between Richard Hensel for re-election as school director and Mrs. Martha V. Hall for the same office.

Mr. Hensel ran on the new school platform pledging himself to see that a new school was built and also to take care of the wants of the children attending the Mokena school. It was on this platform that he was re-elected. He received 178 votes and Mrs. Hall received 95.

Mrs. Mary Cure Taken by Death

Mrs. Mary Cure (nee Abel) died Sunday April 8th at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lange at Worth, Illinois at the age of 80 years and 4 days.

She leaves to mourn her five children, Michael of Chicago, Peter, Andrew Cure of Orland Park, Mary Daniel and Katherine Lange of Worth, Ill., 3 daughters-in-law and two son-in-laws, thirteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren; Louis Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, Jr., and Benjamin Cure, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cure. Besides other relatives residing in Blue Island, Chicago and Fond Du Lac, Wis.

Mrs. Cure lived on a farm near Orland Park, Ill., during the first years of her married life, moving to Worth in the fall of 1900. For the past 9 years since the death of her husband, Peter Cure, she lived with her daughter and son-in-law.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, April 11th at 9 a. m., then to Sacred Heart church at 107th & Keane Ave. Burial was at St. Benedict Cemetery.

Mrs. Cure will long be remembered by those close to her for her pleasant disposition and kind words for everyone. She was a loving, good mother and a kind neighbor.

MUD HOLE SHOULD HAVE RED LIGHT SIGN AT NIGHT

A bad hole on Wolf road south of Mokena is in need of a warning sign at night. A wooden sign board has been stuck up and is visible by day but no red light is placed there at night. Wednesday night Hugh Deadmore of Joliet failed to see the sign board when he turned out for a passing car and hit the sign. Luckily the car was not damaged and no one was hurt.

Voters of Will and DuPage Counties:

You are to be congratulated upon the result of your evident shot and purpose as demonstrated in the general result of the recent primary election, and I want to express my appreciation at the splendid complimentary vote tendered to me by my Friends, the Thinking Voters to whom I appealed in my candidacy for the office of State Representative from the 41st Senatorial District.

I thank you and assure you that my efforts will continue with you and for you to the end of the 1928 campaign for the promotion of those essentials which should be injected into the State's Departments and activities in the interest of the blessings of establishment and strength in Illinois which rightfully belong to her people.

ENVELOPE BAG OF CREPE TWIST; PRINTED LINENS AND PIQUES

HAVE you joined the ranks of the crepe-twist enthusiasts? Once become initiated into the workings of crepe-twist artcraft and you will be wanting to devote all your leisure moments to it.

There's everything to encourage women to take up this fascinating needlework. It is, in the first place, easy of accomplishment, secondly, the materials are inexpensive, and last runs high, and this applies as much to washable weaves as it does to silk, chiffons and other of the more formal weaves. Just now, women who set the fashion pace are taken with the idea of bright flowered or else modernistic printed linens and piques as media for sports ensembles. The novelty of these costumes is that even the coat or jacket is made out of the

but not least, the reward for one's effort is great, for hand bags, belts, hats and even parasols embroidered or darned, more technically speaking, of crepe twist give a genuinely "classy" touch to the costume.

The young woman in the picture had the right idea when she decided to make an envelope bag of crepe twist, which should take its color cue from the flamboyant hues in the modernistic print of her blouse.

This youthful modern knows that one simply cannot be too colorful in dress this season. That is why she is wearing such a striking blouse whose patterning reminds one of none other than gay patchwork design. That is why, also, that she is so enthused with the thought of a crepe-twist bag and belt which shall measure up to the color vivacity of the silk of her blouse.

Of course by this time you are asking in your mind, what is crepe twist, anyway. Well, the surprising thing is that it is nothing more or less than crepe paper so remarkably processed and twisted that it is as sturdy as twine or yarn. One buys it at any counter where paper flower supplies are to be found. The stamped canvas foundations for bags and belts come patterned material, the one-piece dress or blouse being sleeveless.

This adoption of washable fabrics for the entire ensemble should prove quite inspirational to the woman who does her own sewing. The amateur who hesitates to cut into expensive cloth, realizing that she is not equal to giving it the tailored finesse essential to its proper appearance, can with all confidence undertake the making of a simple washable linen like the one in the picture. And when completed, she has the satisfaction of knowing that her costume stands for the very essence of chic, as the mode looks upon it for spring and summer.

For the costume shown here one of the new printed linens was selected. Its gorgeous flower design being silhouetted against a white background. The beauty of these fashionable linens is they look as if hand-blocked, and for that matter many of them are, which gives them distinction.

To accent the fact of color more fully, for color is undoubtedly the "big idea" this season, the designer has picked out the three leading shades in the floral print, which happen to be vivid rose, deep cream and bright blue, repeating them in the girdle and cuffs of belting ribbon. This tricolor in many lovely patterns. For the center of the embroidered flowers you will need a few colorful beads, unless you prefer to fill in with French knots.

In covering the canvas in an over-and-over stitch he sure to embroider the leaves and flowers or conventional pattern, if so be it, first—filling in the background later.

After the needlework is completed a waxing process is necessary. This is done by brushing over with liquid transparent sealing wax. This gives not only a high finish, but it renders the article weather proof.

Enthusiasm for gay print fabrics effect is considered very smart, the idea being frequently carried out in borders for the jersey blouse or those of solid colored crepes and the like.

An accompanying jacket or coat is almost indispensable to sportswear outfits this year, and as said before they are most novel when made of bizarre cotton or linen prints.

Considerable variation is noted in the styling of the new washable prints. A deviation from the one-piece sleeveless dress and jacket theme occurs, if the model include a blouse, skirt and jacket or coat.

Official figures of the state tax commission announced a few days ago show a tax valuation of $8,420,000,000 on all property in the state, based for the first time on the full property valuation. Collections for 1927 are being made at the present time. With a tax rate of thirty cents on the hundred dollar valuation, this will yield the sum of $23,997,000 in taxes, or approximately $2,000,000 less than 1925, when a total of $33,602,878 was produced.

Good automobile drivers must be caught in adolescence Chicago West Park police believe. Accordingly, after struggling with the national problem of motor accidents and deaths, they have adopted a policy of teaching instead of punishing offenders of traffic laws. Instead of being ordered to pay fines or sent to cells, they are sentenced to "school" and enrolled as students in the violators' classes. This is not a "stunt" on the part of the boulevard police but a permanent routine resulting from a four years' trial of the experiment. That it has been very successful is attested by the fact that in 1927 there were only 27 deaths in that district resulting from careless driving and in the last three and one-half years only one child has been killed on the way to and from school although about 90,000 cross the boulevard system every day at least four times.

The area embraced in the boulevard system where traffic is handled by education instead of fear covers 50 miles of thoroughfares. The method of procedure is much the same as exists the country over, so that when the violators come to court they have their tell-tale cards of admission bearing witness to high speed, parking without lights, left-hand turns, turning in the middle of the boulevard or some other of the many prohibited acts. It is a rather significant fact that among the violators of traffic laws age outnumbers youth two to one.

An agricultural bulletin, now ready for free distribution by the state department of agriculture, has been announced by officials of that branch of state service. This booklet, formulated by the division of plant industry, under the supervision of O. T. Olsen, contains the text of the insect pest and plant disease act, and the regulations governing interstate movement of nursery stock. State and federal quarantine areas are delineated in the bulletin.

The state tax commission has ordered a reduction in the tax rates of Stephenson and Champaign counties, to become effective at once. The rates in Stephenson were ordered cut 25 per cent and in Champaign 20 per cent, according to announcement made by William H. Malone, chairman of the commission.

An order announced by the Illinois commerce commission directs the Chicago & Alton, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, the Illinois Traction and other lines of the state to reduce rates for the shipment of coal from Westville and other points and from the Springfield group of mines to Hoopeston. The railroad companies also are directed to prepare reparations as asked in rate cases which have been pending before the commission for some time. The rate, it is estimated, will be reduced five cents a ton.

With the completion in September of the new $1,500,000 highway bridge over the Mississippi river at Cape Girardeau, Mo., a new and shorter route into the Ozarks will be opened to tourists of Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana and other states east of the Mississippi river. The new bridge, the only vehicular causeway over the Mississippi between St. Louis and Memphis—excepting the one directly opposite the latter city—also will afford a new short route from Chicago through Memphis to points in the South and Southwest.

Ten contracts for the construction of pavement and bridges in various parts of the state have been awarded by the state division of highways as follows:

Route 76, section 101B, Boone county, bridge; Stevens Brothers, St. Paul, Minn., $14,625.23.

Route 149, section 105B, Franklin county, bridge; W. H. Shons company, Freeport, $27,024.17.

An agreement has been reached by the Robertson Aircraft corporation, St. Louis, and the American Express company for express service by airplane between St. Louis, Springfield, Peoria and Chicago. The express will be carried on the same planes which now carry passengers and mail, the aircraft firm announced. The cost of mail express will be 25 cents for each quarter pound with a minimum charge of $1.00. At the destination of the airplanes the express company will take charge of the shipments as it now does with consignments over rail. The service will connect with the trans-continental express now in effect through contract routes. In addition to the St. Louis-Chicago routes a line between St. Louis and Kansas City is being contemplated.

Many of the bottomless mud-holes which travelers have found in the dirt roads of Illinois during the past winter are the typical "slick spots" now definitely recognized by scientists as a flaw in the soils in certain sections of the state, according to E. A. Norton, of the soil survey division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. These spots vary in size from a few feet to several miles square and in some localities they make up ten per cent of the total soil area. When dry the spots become very hard and resist further penetration of water. When they are thoroughly wet, however, they take on more water readily and seem bottomless. In this stage, the soil in them has a smooth or slick feel—from whence the spots get their name.

Wanton and thoughtless destruction of bumble bees may prove a real "danger," Dr. Theodore H. Firson, systematic entomologist of the state natural history survey, believes. The danger, he declared, will outweigh temporary damage inflicted upon the persons who destroy the bees' hives. It will be hindering the propagation of clover seed. "There has been much discussion," he said, "about other insects pollinating red clover, but after all is said and done, the fact remains that most of the clover seed produced in most sections of this country is due to the activities of the bumble bees."

A veteran of two wars, Brig. Gen. James M. Eddy, seventy, retired, of the Illinois National Guard, died at his home in Glenview, a few days ago. Brigadier General Eddy was a lieutenant colonel of the One Hundred Thirty-first infantry regiment during the World war and saw service for a year overseas. During the Spanish-American war he was a major of the Third battalion, First Illinois volunteers, and later saw service on the Mexican border in 1916.

In Illinois a person is blind when his eyesight is so deficient that even with the aid of eye-glasses, he cannot do the ordinary things of life such as reading ordinary print, Attorney-General Oscar E. Caristrom has ruled. John E. Seating, state's attorney of Jackson county, asked Caristrom's ruling as to what degree of sight a man must possess or not possess to be entitled to the blind pension.

Frequently it is asked to what extent occupational therapy is effective in the treatment of the insane patients at the Chicago state hospital. Those who are interested will be pleased to know that the results obtained in the occupational therapy department are very gratifying indeed, as evidenced by the fact that an average of one hundred and twenty patients a year ago are so far able to leave the institution to return to their homes.

The weekly health report just issued by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of the state department of health, shows 167 cases of diphtheria, 329 cases of scarlet fever and 228 cases of influenza under quarantine.

Scientists in Dispute

Over Neanderthal Man

Neanderthal man, whose low-browed skulls and crude stone implements have been found in a number of caves and other sites in Europe, was a separate species of the human genus quite distinct from modern man, as asserts G. Elliott Smith, British anthropologist, writing in Nature Magazine one of the leading English scientific periodicals. He cites the recently published investigations of a com-patriot, G. M. Morant, in support of his views. This opinion is at variance with the views of Dr. Alex Hrdlicka famous American student of the development of the human race, as expressed in his recent Huxley lecture in England, where he received the award of the Huxley medal, the highest honor within the gift of British anthropologists. Doctor Hrdlicka advanced evidence to sustain his contention that Neanderthal man was a part of the main line of human family descent.

A sunny disposition is made endurable by a cloud, now and then.

New Experience

It is said that Charlie Chaplin began his career as a circus performer. Before "going on" each night, it is declared, Charlie would put a sack of peanuts in his hip pocket for an elephant friend. The pachyderm would shuffle up behind Charlie, thrust his trunk into the hip pocket and sniffle gratefully.

On one occasion Charlie thought he would give the elephant a real treat. So he placed some nice, fresh, sticky popcorn in his pocket. The elephant could not get the candy out. Nor could he extricate his trunk.

At this point in the story Charlie always pauses for effect.

"You've heard an elephant trumpet," he will say, "but did you ever hear one trumpet in your hip pocket?" —Kansas City Star.

Skyscrapers and Wonder

Sir Thomas Lipton said at a dinner in New York:

"A great and subtle compliment was paid to your city by a friend of mine. He was here a fortnight. On his return I said to him:

"Well, your grace, what did you think of New York?"

"I have come home," he answered, "with the roof of my mouth sun-burned."

WORTH

The community party given by the Goodfellowship club was a decided success. The evening's entertainment was opened by a piano solo by Miss Gladys Crandall. Rev. Sanders then read the preamble of the constitution which is done at all Goodfellowship meetings after which he told the audience of the future plans of the club. He then introduced the speaker of the evening Mr. Merlanti an ex-Italian aviator a man who had received many medals of honor from the Allied and Italian governments. He was also attached to the Italian Legation at Washington. He gave a very fine talk on his experiences.

This was followed by entertainment by members of the club. Mr. Perry Bishop gave a number of his famous readings. Mr. Monroe Peterson the Worth famed Jewish comedian imitator entertained the audience with some very clever impromptu jokes. The black faced comedians Harold Ferrin who is president of the club and Mr. L. Macaulay chairman of the social committee put on some unique negro comic drama.

Following this the Worth orchestra composed of George, Bruce and Kenneth Lucas and Thomas Little lead by Monroe Peterson entertained the group while the social committee under the direction of Mr. Wm. Little and Mr. L. Shipper served the refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee. After which there was a general social time and all went home feeling that they had had the time of their life, looking forward to the next Fellowship party.

Mr. Perry Bishop Addresses

Community Service
Mr. Perry Bishop addressed the community evening service at the Worth Community Church Sunday night on the subject "An Evening With Great Poets". It was a very fine address as Mr. Bishop is an authority on this subject.

There was a very good crowd to hear him, people from Palos Park, Orland Park and Chicago Ridge were present. This service is a part of a series of evening community services that the church is putting on.

Village Election

The village election held Tuesday in which three members of the village board were elected. Mr. Wm. Tesnow, Louis Lange and Ed. Conway ran on the independent citizens ticket and Mr. O. H. Lysen, Wm. Kittle and W. W. Palmer on the citizens ticket. There was also the consideration of the bond issue of $13,500 for the purpose of building village hall. Most of the property owners do not seem to be in favor of this because they feel that it is not the proper time to do this. The Village is in the process of development so it seems best to wait a year or so to determine the right location and the adequate needs. Many seem to feel that enough money has been wasted on things that has been done in the village without proper consideration of the needs.

Junior Scouts Earn Money

For Equipment

The Junior Boy Scouts are earning money to buy equipment by getting subscriptions for the Midlothian Mercury. The paper is allowing them half of the amount of each subscription. The boys are much interested in this as it gives them an opportunity to serve their community as well as earn money for their organization.

MOKENA

THE MOKENA M. E. CHURCH

Glen T. Beatty, Pastor.
Evening Worship 7:00 P. M.
Sunday School 10:30 A. M.
We are pleased to announce that next Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock Rev. Morrison C. Galloway will preach in our usual evening worship service. At the close of the service the Holy Communion will be observed for all those who will accept our invitation to enter into this sacrament. Rev. Galloway has been pastor of the New Lenox M. E. church for three years, and during this time has done much good throughout this section of the country as well as proving himself a pastor who has guided his church into growth and development. We feel sure that our community will welcome the opportunity to hear Rev. Mr. Galloway, and we invite all people to worship with us at this time.

Plans are being discussed to hold services in the morning during the Sundays of the summer months.

The Ladies Aid was entertained at the home of Mrs. Ona McGovney Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. L. G. Bruder and daughters motored to Michigan the week end. A buncie party will be held by the Young People's Society of the St. John Evangelical church at the church parlors on Wednesday night April 25th. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served.

The first dance of the season will be held at the Men's Club pavilion on Saturday night, April 28th by the Mokena Baseball Team.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hall entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and children at dinner Sunday evening.

It is understood that the Public Service Company expects to turn on the current on their new extension from Mokena to Marley this week.

L. G. Bruder has traded his auto in and has a fine new Studebaker.

Public Service To Build Model Electric Farm

This is the architect's conception of how the model farm being established by the Public Service Company will look when completed. Building is already underway on a large tract near Mundelein in Lake County. Lee A. Huson, formerly of Volo, will manage the farm for the company.

A model farm on which practically everything will be done electrically is being established by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois on an 80-acre tract about two miles directly west of Mundelein in the central portion of Lake County.

"The company has felt for some time," said Vice-President John G. Learned in announcing the project, "that application of electricity to farm practices has passed the experimental stage. The things we propose to do with electricity on this model farm can also be done in the same manner on any other farm in this region. The farm will be operated by a practical farmer, whose knowledge of electricity is comparable with that of the average layman. In other words, the methods and practices to be used on the model farm will not be such as to require special mechanical or electrical ability."

Farm buildings will include a residence, barn, garage, hog house, chicken house, implement shed, farm office, brooder house, model dairy house, farm workshop, well-house, and silo.

When completed the farm will serve both as a model electrical farm open for inspection and study, and as a practical farm to be operated on an efficient business basis. Cows of good grade will be purchased for the farm, and horses will be kept for the comparatively few field activities not done mechanically. Both the house and the barn will be wired according to Red Seal specifications which provide for a definite number of convenience outlets for the attachment of various appliances. It is believed that this will be the first barn ever wired under the Red Seal plan.

Lee A. Huson formerly of Volo and until recently connected with the Lake County Land Association will operate the farm and take up residence there with his wife and two daughters. Mr. Huson is a practical farmer of broad experience.

"Construction of the buildings will proceed as rapidly as possible," said Mr. Learned, "in order that actual operation may be started at the earliest possible date."

ORLAND PARK

The first regular meeting of the Orland Park Parent Teachers Assco. held Wednesday evening at the school was a great success. There was about 70 people present, the teachers were all there also Miss McMann the Country life director. The school board was also present. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Adelle Cooper president, she carried through the business of the meeting after which Mrs. George Gee Jr. and Mrs. Jennings sang a duet. The speaker of the evening was then introduced by Mrs. Cooper. The speaker being Mrs. Edmonds of LaGrange the district chairman. She gave a very fine talk on the purpose and work of the organization.

There are 21 charter members in the organization and 29 were made members at this meeting bringing the total up to 50 members. The goal is now 75 members. Every parent in the community should be a member of this organization as it deals with the most fundamental problems of the community, the education of the children.

The president has selected the committees. There are four standing committees and each committee is composed of about 8 members. The chairman of the committees are as follows: Publicity, Mrs. John Schmucke; program, Mrs. Bert Jennings; membership, Mrs. Earl Reish; hospitality, Mrs. Mrs. Thos. Davidson.

The regular school board election was held Saturday evening at the school for the election of one member of the board Mr. Kinney was the retiring member. Mr. Louis Arnold and Mrs. Adelle Cooper were put up as prospective board members. Neither one in any sense a rival of the other for the place. There was about 80 votes cast and Mrs. Cooper was elected.

The senior choir of the Orland Park M. E. church has been asked to present their Easter cantata at the Lemont M. E. church next Sunday evening April 22. Those who did not have an opportunity to hear the cantata Easter evening may hear it at this time. There will be no evening service at the Orland church next Sunday evening as all may go to Lemont.

The following Sunday April 29 the Lemont choir will present their cantata at the Orland church. This will be a real opportunity for all.

The Camp Fire girls under the direction of Miss Rice of the Orland M. E. church will present an evenings entertainment in pictures of Ben Hur and Red Ridinghood Thursday evening at the church. The proceeds of this entertainment will go to help buy their equipment.

RESEARCH HOSPITAL FACILITIES STRAINED

90,000 Unfortunates Swamp State Welfare Clinics Hunting Pain Relief.

A vast throng of nearly 90,000 unfortunates, made up of every type of person, visited the clinics of the Research hospital in Chicago, operated co-operatively by the State Department of Public Welfare and the University of Illinois College of Medicine, during the past year, according to an announcement.

This great throng of sick and incapacitated come from every walk of life and, through no fault of theirs, have not been able to provide the necessary medical and surgical care to fight the battles of life successfully, according to doctors in charge.

A considerable number of these unfortunates are neurotics that travel from doctor to doctor, retelling their various symptoms, irritable, dissatisfied with everything, eternally seeking relief from both real and imaginary ills. On the other hand, there are those unfortunates who, through poverty brought on by business reverses, prolonged illnesses, and other mishaps over which they have no control, become in a sense a public charge. These are the people who occupy the attention of the 100 doctors, nurses, pharmacists, clerks, social workers and others who make up the staff of the Research hospital.

During the past year 86,638 patients visited this great clinic. They were divided into two general classes—22,382 new cases and 64,256 old cases. These in turn were divided into the following: Internal medicine, 16,351; pediatrics, or care of children, 6,774; otolaryngology, or treatment of nose and throat, 8,836; orthopedics, or the correction of deformities, 3,771; ophthalmology, or treatment of the eye, 12,393; gynecology, or treatment of women's diseases, 6,151; neurology, or treatment of nervous diseases, 3,243; dermatology, or treatment of skin diseases, 11,922; genito-urinary, 5,628; surgery, 8,448; and obstetrics, 3,073, of which number 700 were new cases.

Those patients who need special hospital care are sent to the wards where 150 beds are supplied for their special service. With the recent action of Governor Small in ordering the construction of the new nurses' home the capacity of this section of the work will be materially increased, not enough, however, to care for all the needs, for if figures for the past year can be used as a criterion there would be need for 1,000 beds if facilities were available.

Stabling Our Political Zoo

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON

FIRST USE OF THE DONKEY SYMBOL

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

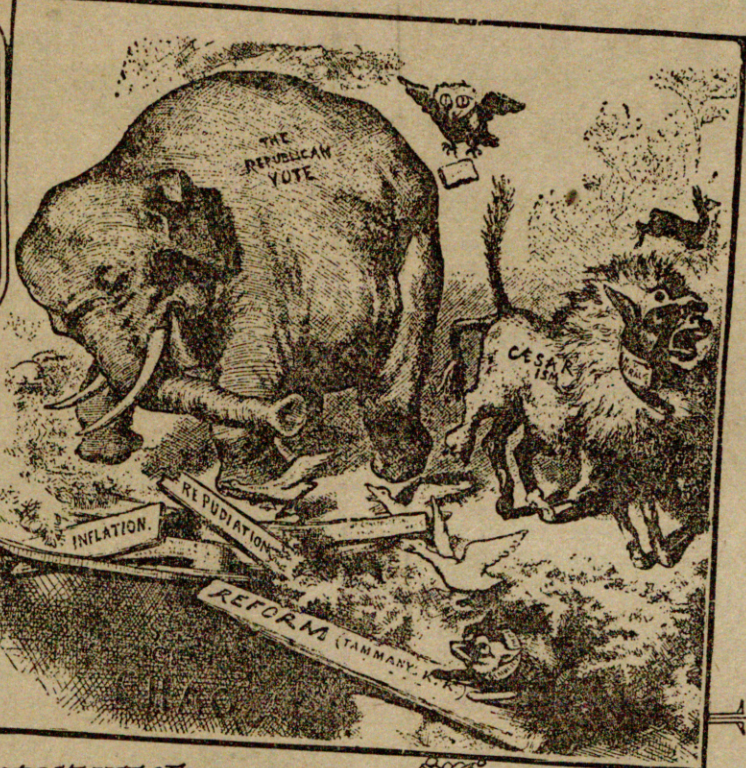

IN KANSAS CITY, MO., there stands a public auditorium with a seating capacity of 14,000, down in Houston, Texas, they are planning to build a similar hall which will hold 25,000, and these two great structures will be used next June to "stabile our political zoo." That is to say, the Republican national convention at which candidates for President and vice president of the United States are to be nominated will be held in Kansas City June 12 and two weeks later, June 23, the Democrats will meet in Houston to name their standard-bearers in the 1928 campaign.

The Republican "zoo" is pretty much a one-animal affair, consisting of an elephant bearing the legendary brand of "G. O. P." Of course, the figure of a bull moose may be seen by some lurking in the shadows but it will be only a ghostly animal, reminiscent of the days of 1912. The Democratic "zoo" is somewhat richer in number and variety of its "animals." First and foremost is the donkey, which is as universal the symbol of the Democratic party as the elephant is of the Republican, but many persons of the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian political persuasion will tell you that the rooster is the true symbol of their party. The Tammany tiger will also be much in evidence at Houston, since one of the leading candidates learned how to crack the ringmaster's whip in Tammany hall. As for the camel, symbol of the "drys," where will it be stabled—in Kansas City or in Houston? It may be welcomed into both. And then again, it may be cast out by both "into the desert air" where it is supposed to flourish.

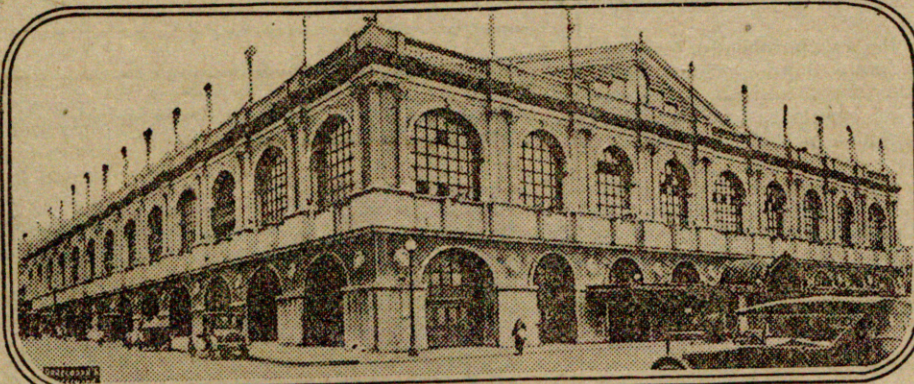

The use of these symbols for political parties or certain factions in them has become a recognized part of our political history and nearly every one of them has an interesting history. The rooster as an emblem of the Democrats was first to appear on the scene and it came about this way: In 1840, Joseph Chapman was a Democratic candidate for the Indiana legislature from Hancock county. Things were looking gloomy for the Democrats at that time for it was soon after the panic in Van Buren's administration and the Whigs under the leadership of Gen. William Henry Harrison, the "Hero of Tippecanoe," were developing great strength. About that time George Pattison, editor of the Indianapolis Constitution, wrote to a certain William Sebastian of Greenfield as follows: "I have been informed by a Democrat that in one part of your county thirty Van Buren men have turned for Harrison. Please let me know if such be the fact. I think such a deplorable state of fact cannot exist. If so, I will visit Hancock and address the people relative to the policy of the Democratic party. I have no time to spare, but I will refuse to eat or sleep or rest so long as anything can be done. Do, for heaven's sake, stir up the Democracy. See Chapman, tell him not to do as he did heretofore. He used to create unnecessary alarm; he must cower; we have much to crow over. I will insure this county to give a Democrat majority of 200 votes. Spare no pains."

This letter happened to fall into the hands of the Whigs, who promptly published it in an Indianapolis paper as a means of ridiculing the Democrats. However, it had the opposite effect and "Crow, Chapman, Crow," became the slogan of the Indiana Democrats. When the Indiana Sentinel was launched in 1841 it carried at the top of the front page the picture of a proud rooster and under it the slogan of "Crow, Chapman, Crow." In time this symbol spread all over the country and became the popular emblem of the Democratic party. It is still much in use by the Democrats themselves, although the more widely used symbol by cartoonists is the donkey.

The donkey, as well as the Republican elephant and the Tammany tiger, is the product of the genius of one of the greatest cartoonists this country has ever known, Thomas Nast. Nast, a Bavarian by birth, came to this country as a boy. In school he was more interested in drawing pictures than he was in his books and at the age of sixteen he took some of his drawings to the editor of Leslie's Weekly who hired him for the princely sum of four dollars a week, to draw illustrations of news events. Nast left Leslie's in 1850 for a position on the New York Illustrated News but it was not until he began drawing for Harper's Weekly that he attracted much notice. By the third year of the Civil war his war pictures, which stirred the patriotic blood of the North and sent hundreds of young men to join the colors, had made him known throughout the country and President Lincoln was said to have declared once that Nast's cartoons were "the best recruiting sergeants on the side of the Union."

After the Civil war Nast cartoons came into even greater fame as he turned his attention to the heated politics of the times. The great contest at that time was between President Johnson and Edwin M. Stanton, the secretary of war, whom Johnson was trying to remove from office. Nast was strongly anti-Johnson and pro-Stanton. When Stanton died, just after his elevation to the Supreme court bench by President Grant, the bitter feelings of the Johnson-Stanton feud had by no means died down and southern Democratic papers attacked Stanton even in their obituary notices. On January 15, 1870, Nast drew his first donkey cartoon. It pictured Stanton as a dead lion kicked by a donkey labeled "Copperhead papers." Underneath were the lines: "A live Jackass kicking a dead Lion and such a Lion! and such a Jackass!" It is curious to note that this cartoon was a small one buried on the last page of Harper's Weekly among the advertisements for cleansing powders, sewing machines and books. Such was the humble beginning of a symbol which was to receive nation-wide recognition.

Nast did not immediately repeat the donkey symbol. He had others for the Democratic party, the serpent in some cases and the fox in others. Soon after the appearance of the donkey emblem Nast gave to the world another political symbol. In 1870 William M. Tweed was the boss of New York and he was ruling with a high hand. The New York Times and Harper's Weekly were virtually the only papers which had the courage to oppose Tweed. Nast especially had fought Tweed with his stinging caricatures until Tweed said to him exclaiming, "Let's stop them d—n pictures. I don't care so much what the papers write about me, my constituents can't read, but d—n it, they can see the pictures." Nast's reply to this threat was a cartoon in Harper's dated November 11, 1871, which appeared just two days before election. It showed Tweed as a Roman emperor in the Coliseum, beaming down upon the scene of a giant tiger rending the helpless form of the Republic. "On the tiger's collar was the word 'Americus,' the name of Tweed's club of which the tiger was the badge. That tiger of Nast's literally tore Tweed's ring to pieces. Only one of its members was re-elected and all were indicted for fraud. By the next week another artist had adopted the tiger as the Tammany symbol and from that time on Tammany and Tiger were synonymous.

Nast's invention of the elephant as a symbol of the Republican party came about in a half-affectionate jab at his own political party. In 1874 the Republicans faced their first defeat since coming into power in 1860. It was not a Presidential year but in New York Samuel J. Tilden, fighting against the Republican governor, John A. Dix, was making a double-edged fight for that office. Tilden appealed to all classes of voters, for he had been a prosecutor of Tweed and he was also a member of the reformed Tammany hall. The strength of the Democrats lay not in any local issue or in the power of their candidate. There was a national issue at stake, whether or not a President of the United States should have a third term. President Grant was believed to be determined to run for President again in 1876. The principal opponent to the idea was James Gordon Bennett's New York Herald, which shrieked incessantly "Caesarism!" and declared that Dix must be struck down to punish Grant. The New York World and even the Tribune chimed in the chorus and the New York Times gravely warned, "It is not Grantism that is at stake but Tweedism."

At this crucial moment Nast drew his cartoon showing the first Republican elephant. It was called "The Third Term Panic"—The New York Herald, an ass dressed in a lion's skin labeled "Caesarism," is braying loudly and all of the animals in the forest are fleeing in alarm. The Tribune is shown as a giraffe, the World as an owl dropping an arithmetic book, the Times as a unicorn with a monocle. At the edge of an abyss, barely hidden by broken planks marked "Inflation," "Reputation," "Reform" (Tammany) and "Reconstruction," is a huge elephant marked "Republican Vote." Nearby is a half-concealed fox with features suggesting Tilden's and labeled "Democratic Party." Two weeks later, after the election of Tilden and, for the first time in fifteen years, a Republican house of representatives, Nast drew a sequel to that cartoon. It showed the elephant tumbling down into the pit with the rotten planks and the rejoicing animals following, and it was called "Caught in a Trap—The Result of the Third Term Hoax." From that time on the elephant was repeatedly the symbol of the Republican party in the Nast cartoons. But it was not until 1880 that he showed the donkey and the elephant together definitely marked Republican party and Democratic party. In this cartoon the elephant lay asleep before the White House while the donkey was jumping over a cliff into financial chaos, despite the efforts of Senator Bayard to pull it back by the tail as he exclaims, "Hold on, and you may walk over the sluggish animal up there yet."

Other cartoonists were quick to adopt Nast's symbolism and for the last fifty years the Republican elephant, the Democratic donkey and the Tammany tiger have been recognized members of our political zoo. Just when the camel as the emblem of the Prohibition party joined it or which artist is responsible is unknown, but the camel, which traditionally can go without a drink for such long periods of time, was so obviously a symbol of the party which sought to make the country dry that no such originality as was shown in Nast's invention was necessary to bring it into being. Since the passage of the Eighteenth amendment and the consequent decline of the prohibitionists as a national party, the camel has played but little part in the political procession. However the wet and dry issue which is still a concern of both parties has served to keep this lump-backed symbol alive, although each party is cautious about taking the bold step of teaming it with its own emblem.

The political zoo added a new member in 1912 when ex-President Roosevelt led a revolt in the ranks of the Republican party after the nomination of William Howard Taft at Chicago. The name adopted for the new third party was the "Progressives" but it would have been difficult to have symbolized the Progressives with an animal as striking as either the Republican elephant or the Democratic donkey. By a lucky circumstance, however, such a symbol was soon furnished them. One day newspaper reporters, seeking out Colonel Roosevelt, whose robust health had been threatened with a breakdown, asked him how he felt. The reply was characteristic of the Rough Rider and exponent of the strenuous life—"I feel like a bull moose," he exclaimed. And thus was the new political symbol born. For such a hardy animal, however, the Bull Moose had a short existence. It was strong enough to help the Democratic donkey defeat the Republican elephant in 1912 but soon afterwards it passed out of the political picture.

JESUS AND THE HOME

LESSON TEXT.—Mark 10:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Honor thy father and mother, which is the first commandment with promise.
PRIMARY TOPIC.—Jesus Loves Little Children.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Jesus Wants Children to Come to Him.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Being a Christian at Home.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Christian Family.

In this scripture we see Christ as a teacher.

1. Concerning Marriage (vv. 1-12). The question touching divorce, which the Pharisees temptingly put to Christ, brought forth teaching which exhibits marriage in its true light.

1. Marriage should not be degraded by divorce (vv. 1-5). Divorce was not instituted by God. God ordained the marriage relation and intended it to be indissoluble. Moses did not originate it or authorize it, but suffered, limited and regulated it. The reason Moses even suffered it was because of the hardness of the hearts of the people. The existence therefore and practice of divorce indicates the coarseness and perverseness of man. The real cause is sin. There is no more real evidence of the blighting effects of sin in the world than the increasing number of divorces.

2. Marriage God's primal law (vv. 6-8).

The ideal law of life for the subjects of Christ's kingdom is marriage. This is proven by the fundamental fact of sex. "God made them male and female" (v. 6). The union of the male and female natures is physical, mental and spiritual. In marriage the male and female natures are mutually complemented. "They twain shall be one flesh, so that they are no more twain, but one flesh." God's plan is that man should not be without the woman or the woman without the man (1 Cor. 11:11).

3. Marriage has God's sanction (v. 9).

When God created Eve and brought her to Adam He performed the first marriage ceremony and declared that man should leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife. "What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

4. Marriage of the divorced forbidden (v. 10-12).

The marriage relation should only be broken by death and sin. In response to the request of the disciples for further information He declared:

(1) "Whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another committeth adultery against her."

(2) "If a woman shall put away her husband and marry another she committeth adultery."

11. Concerning Children (vv. 13-16). The union of the male and female natures, according to God's primal law of marriage, lays the foundation of family life. The normal issue of such a union is children. In connection with the divine law of marriage it is fitting that Jesus should set forth His estimate of children and show His interest in them. Christian men and women will regard children as the property of the Lord and will esteem it a high and holy privilege to train them for Him. Observe:

1. Children brought for the touch of Jesus (v. 13).

It is incumbent upon all parents to seek for their children personal contact with Jesus.

2. The parents rebuked by the disciples for bringing their children (v. 13).

They seemed to think that attention to children was beneath the dignity of Christ.

3. Jesus' reply (vv. 14, 15). He was displeased—really indignant at their words. He is displeased today over those who are hindering their children from coming to Him.

(1) "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God" (v. 14). The kingdom belongs to the children.

(2) "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall not enter therein" (v. 15). Those who count themselves morally helpless, and cast themselves upon Jesus Christ, the King, really enter the kingdom.

4. Jesus' action (v. 16).

He took the children up in His arms, put His hands upon them and blessed them. Christ is the Savior of children. Where Christ's spirit rules, childhood is sacred and children have great care.

WOMEN GETTING BALD

The next five years will show women with Bald Heads, or going in that direction. Men attribute it to Heredity. What will the women say is the cause for it? Thousands of young men bald, or going that way, who had no need for getting bald or even scarce of hair. You surely can give one or two minutes each day to take care of your hair. This is all the time required. You owe this to Nature, as it was given to us in the beginning by Nature. Grow hair on your Bald Head. Grow new hair, destroy dandruff by improving the condition of the scalp which feeds the hair. Then you have the problem solved.

Concave Mirror Used in Latest Telescope

The largest telescope in Italy, with a mirror 40 inches in diameter, is now in use at the Merate observatory, in the foothills of the Alps about 20 miles northeast of Milan. Ordered in 1923, when the dust and smoke of Milan made it necessary for the observatory there to move to a better location, the new instrument embodies all the latest improvements. It is a reflecting telescope, in which the 40-inch concave mirror takes the place of the convex lens in the more familiar type of telescope. The moving parts of the telescope weigh more than 18 tons, yet so perfectly are they balanced that a one-half horse power motor is adequate for turning the instrument to follow the stars across the sky. The instrument was built by the Carl Zeiss Optical works, in Jena, Germany.

Army as Melting Pot

As far as names go, the One Hundred Twenty-seventh Infantry, a unit of the Wisconsin National Guard, is commonly regarded in military circles as the "melting pot" of the United States army. Aside from the usual number of Smiths, Browns and Williamses, as well as the expected sprinkling of Irish, one finds such names as Kohl, Schultz, Schetz, Ranzinger, Engelke, Fritz, Gnielner, Draheim, Dederich, Palmateer, Zumann, Schaebeck, Resheske, Klinker, Tittera, Renskers, Karnopp, Ziebell, Prellwitz, Grundeman, Hilde and Haug. Company K is officered by Capt. W. J. Szulakiewicz and First Lieut. Frank Resczynski.

Trapping Tomato Moth

The use of electricity in exterminating tomato worms is being demonstrated on the farm of L. W. Purdum & Sons, Danville, Va. Having tried all recommended measures for the control of the tomato worm without success, Mr. Purdum conceived the idea of trapping the tomato moth before it could lay eggs. A simple trap with a 40-watt lamp was constructed. A three-quart pan containing kerosene is suspended from the reflector about 6 inches below the lamp. The lights attract the insects and in flying against the globe they drop into the kerosene underneath.

THE RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

Copyright by Barse & Hopkins

WNU Service

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The purser accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Poitania at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is startled to find somebody occupying his house. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison.

"No doubt," he said equably; "but the police are not here to satisfy the vagrant curiosity of burglars, as you will find."

There was no question in his mind but that this amazing stranger had indeed been waiting for him and was undismayed by the encounter. There was, in fact, an air of triumph about him now which spelled disaster for Trent.

"Perhaps the police may be incurious," the singular personage replied. "But the public is avid for sensation. It would seem an intriguing problem for a newspaper man—or preferably a newspaper woman. I should remind me of the Anthony Trent who wrote entertainingly of a crook he created and styled Conway Parker. I should lament the sad fact that the death of a very wealthy uncle in Australia gave him a fortune and robbed fiction of an ornament."

This mention of Australia was disquieting. Years ago Trent had invented the legend of the rich uncle to account for the sudden alteration in his fortunes. He had long been aware that he had begotten something which might prove very dangerous. Uncles must be accounted for in family genealogies. It would be easy enough to prove that no will had been prepared in the island continent which had Anthony Trent of New York as its beneficiary.

"I could assert that your lamented uncle had been my partner and that the money he left you belonged by right to me. It would be a simple matter to compel publicity."

"You know very well you are talking nonsense," Trent said, keeping his temper under control.

"Of course," the stranger agreed, "I admit it; and so are you when you speak of calling in the police. Come, let us chat in a more friendly fashion. After all, it is your house, and you are entitled to consideration."

"You are very kind," Trent said acidly, "but I am going to get out of you what you mean by camping here, and what you want."

"A legitimate curiosity," the other agreed. "Very well. You are Anthony Trent, master criminal. You stole the great Takawaja emerald from Andrew Apthorpe, the Mount Aubyn ruby, the Edgcomb sapphire and the hundred carat Nizam's diamond, and innumerable other things of value. And you have worked so cleverly that you have flouted the police for eight years. Only once were you in danger, and that was in France, when Lieutenant Devlin, formerly of the New York police, denounced you to his adjutant."

Trent sat motionless. Here was a chapter of the dead past rising to condemn him. What more might this mysterious man not know?

"Before Devlin died," Trent said, "he tore up the depositions he would not sign, and I was absolved."

"But not before the documents were read—and remembered. Your adjutant was a lawyer, a man trained to marshal evidence, and kept it in his brain."

So it was Captain Sutton who had betrayed him. The Captain Sutton who had fallen into disgrace and was now in Sing Sing prison. Trent looked at the strange man and determined to talk. There were no witnesses.

"So it's Sutton who gave me away? Trent's face hardened as he considered this treachery. Since that day when Captain Sutton had put his hand on Trent's arm and said kindly, "You played in luck this time, Trent; I wouldn't risk it again," he had done nothing to bring himself in danger of the law. And yet he had been denounced.

"You are wrong," the stranger said, reading his thoughts. "He is not your enemy; you should not harbor hard thoughts of him. You knew him as a very rich man. He is now penniless and in prison for ten years. They no longer know him as Captain Sutton with an honorable war record. He is called by a number now."

"Nevertheless, he has given me away to a stranger; and if he has betrayed me to you, how many more hold my destiny in their hands?"

"I alone know what was contained in Devlin's depositions. I am your friend's elder and only brother. I am Campbell Sutton."

Trent tried not to betray his enormous relief. A brother of his former adjutant's, no matter how far trespassed on the definition of a welcome guest, would not be as dangerous as the police. And, conversely, he would not be as easily disposed of as a burglar.

"I came as by brother's emissary. I am here to remind you of a law which, while it is as old as mankind, has found its way into no statute books. It is the law of compensation between man and man. My brother saved you from many years of prison; that you cannot deny. He thinks enough of you to suppose you will admit this."

"I do," Trent said.

"Ordinarily my brother would never have given another thought to what he did for you. Personally he liked and admired you. When he was confronted with this appalling disaster he called first upon those men with whom for many years he had been intimate. They failed him. Then he thought of you, and put me in possession of those facts of your career which I have mentioned."

"What can I do?" Trent demanded. He recognized that he indeed owed much to the unfortunate Sutton, and he was ready to pay the debt; he had no thought of evasion. "How can I help? If it's money for a new trial, I can certainly be of assistance." His recent investments had been fortunate ones.

"It is not money," Campbell Sutton returned. "I have that. It is something that none of his friends had. In choosing you my brother was not selecting you as the best of a group; he was picking you as the only individual of that group."

Marked uneasiness preyed upon Anthony Trent. What qualities had he that raised him above his fellows? Unwillingly he was forced to admit that there was one thing—should he call it a sport or vocation?—where he had been pre-eminent and without a peer.

"Your brother rates me too highly," he said.

"On the contrary he assigns you your rightful position. You are the only man he knows, or has heard of, who can bring to a successful issue the desire of his heart. Do you know why my brother received that monstrous sentence?"

"I heard it was attempted murder and embezzlement. I could not believe it of him."

"Nevertheless a judge and jury convicted him of using trust monies to cover market losses. It was proved that he had falsified entries."

"Why did he attempt murder? Was that charge justified?"

"He did not try to murder Grant, he tried to injure him, I admit. He found that the man he trusted had betrayed him. Mrs. Sutton was a very beautiful woman who loved gaiety. My brother provided for her lavishly. He thought it a high and noble quality in her that she did not, like many other wives, seek to hold her husband back from going overseas. But he had a premonition that he would never return, and deeded nearly all his fortune to her. It is not a pleasant tale, Mr. Trent. She sent him off because she had grown fond of Payson Grant, and Payson Grant, having control of my brother's business, sought to effect his ruin. That is the whole story."

"Unfortunately my brother conducted his own defense. He could have chosen no poorer counsel. The sight of Grant made him forget everything. He insulted the judge; he contradicted his own testimony. I believe he was for the time insane. He threatened when the trial was over he would kill Grant. In view of the amazing mess he made of it, ten years was a light sentence. He is now doing what he can to prepare enough evidence to justify petitioning for a new trial."

"Surely that won't be easy?"

"Almost impossible for him, situated as he is; and just as difficult for me, who am a quiet man, averse to society and unused to mixing with my kind."

Trent started to cross-examine.

"You are his only brother. Are you, also, afraid of justice?"

"There is nothing in Campbell Sutton's life that can cause him alarm. The manner was rather grandiose, almost absurd."

Trent leaned forward and watched his expressions.

"Then why does an honest man need to clamber over roofs and enter like a burglar?"

"For two very excellent reasons," said Campbell Sutton, without that momentary pause which would tell his hearer that he was lying. "One is that your front door defied my efforts. Another, that I should not be surprised if Payson Grant had me shadowed. He knows I have sworn to make him pay; in his place I should keep an eye on an enemy likely to be dangerous."

Trent thought there was no good purpose served by evading the issue. Campbell Sutton had come neither for money nor sympathy.

"What do you want me to do?"

"In brief, this: you must force a confession from Payson Grant which will exonerate Frank."

"Grant won't make any statement," Trent said. "Why should he? The law has given him ten years to enjoy stolen property."

"It is the only way. For my part I should be forced to give up the problem as insoluble. With you it is different; you have at your fingers' tips the technique of crime. For you it should merely be entertainment."

"I have abandoned, forever, what you term the technique of crime. What money I have is at Captain Sutton's disposal," Trent said coldly, "and any other legitimate effort will be given gladly, but I will not go back to the old ways."

"One appreciates these delicate scruples and honors you for them. I expected them, in fact. But what concern is now is how soon you can start to pay your debts to a man unjustly condemned to ten years of imprisonment. You would have got more than that but for him."

"I am not going to dispute your brother's services," Trent said quietly. "But if I am forced to it I must point out the difference. It cost him no more than a momentary twinge of conscience to do what he did for me. Consider the situation. It was at a time when every man was needed, and I had a definite use. If your brother had sent me back home under guard he would have lost a man he relied on, and also the men detailed to guard me. He shut his eyes to what I had done because he had a shrewd idea I had finished with that sort of thing. And, perhaps, he thought the work I was doing was risky enough to offer small chance of my getting through. For that, I am asked to take the risks of blackmailing Payson Grant. I don't welcome that sort of thing now. I refuse to put my head in a noose for any man."

"You will admit that you could, by some method yet to be determined, abduct Payson Grant and hold him until he confessed."

"It would be difficult, but I suppose it could be done."

"Then you admit the task is not impossible. You have conceded that you might accomplish it and remain undetected. If that is so, Mr. Trent, why not accept it as the lesser risk?"

"Less than what?"

"Than going to prison for the Apthorpe robbery, for instance."

Trent's eyes narrowed. "You would denounce me for the things that are past after knowing I am through with that life?"

"I am sorry, but that is the only way."

Trent laughed. It was an unpleasant laugh that should have warned the other man he was in danger.

"I thought I had finished with violence and crime. God knows I want to forget it. But there's a limit beyond which no man living shall push me. I will not do as you say even for your brother, and I will not go to jail because you denounce me to the police."

"What course is left to you?"

"One that I would rather not take, but one I will readily accept rather than what you propose. Listen for a moment. You are here in my rooms. Technically at least you are a burglar. There is no reason that I should not shoot a burglar, is there?"

"My brother rather thought you might be inclined to violence, and perhaps anxious for my safety, arranged if anything prevents by communication with him on or before a given date to call in the warden. Naturally he would claim the rewards that have been offered for you."

Scientists Frown on Idea of Divining Rod

Letters are frequently received by the geological survey, Department of the Interior, asking for the names and prices of the best makes of instruments guaranteed to find diamonds, gold, silver and other metals, and especially buried treasure. The claims of vendors of mineral rods and other devices said to be effective in locating precious metals and buried treasure are considered fraudulent by the geological survey. The dip needle or miner's compass has been used with some success in prospecting for iron and other magnetic ores, but the successful use of such an instrument requires considerable experience in surveying, together with the ability to make accurate mathematical observations and deductions. Various types of electrical prospecting devices, the seismograph and the torsion balance, have aroused considerable interest during the last few years. These devices, however, are most complicated and require the services of technical experts specially trained in their use. They would be of no service to one not versed in the principles of geology and physics.

There are 7,000,000 more automobiles in the United States than there were three years ago.

And drives the clouds away.
The soul grows glad that hears it,
And feels its courage strong—
A laugh is just like sunshine
For cheering folks along.—Anon.

DAINTY TIDBITS

There are so many tasty bits of food, called fancy dishes, which may be prepared at home with very little work and not much experience.

Loganberry Frappe.—Boil together one-half cupful of water and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Strain the juice of one can of the finest loganberries and mash through a sieve. Add the juice of half a lemon and the strained juice to the sugar sirup. Stir well and strain through a sieve again. Cool and pack in a mold placed in ice and salt for three hours. Serve in tall glasses with whipped cream for garnishment.

Pear and Chocolate Mousse.—Take one cupful of cooked pear pulp, add one cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a bit of grated rind. Melt two squares of bitter chocolate to one cupful of whipped cream, add the pear pulp, a bit of salt, mix well with one-half cupful of pear juice and pack in ice in a mold. Let stand three to four hours. The sugar is best added to the cream after whipping, as it holds up better.

Almond Acorns.—Blanch the desired amount of almonds and dry well. Dip each tip, coating them two-thirds of the way up in sweet melted dipping chocolate. Dip them immediately into chopped pistachio nuts and place on waxed paper to dry.

Chocolate Prunes.—Wash and soak overnight large fine prunes. Bring to the boiling point, remove and drain. Remove the pits and allow the prunes to dry. Fill each prune with a salted pecan meat and dip in melted chocolate. Let stand until well dried, then wrap in waxed paper.

French Dates.—Stone large dates and steam them for five minutes. When cool stuff them with fondant. Cut pistachio nut meats into halves and press two or three pieces into the fondant of each date so that the meats show.

Danish Hash.—There should be to begin this dish a cupful of rich brown gravy left over from the day before. Take one cupful each of diced cold boiled potatoes, apple, cold meat and onion to taste. Heat a tablespoonful of lard in a frying pan and brown the onion; add potatoes and apples, then add the meat with gravy enough to moisten. Cover and cook until ready to serve—about three-fourths of an hour.

Delectable Dishes.

Try serving the good old wholesome onion in a different way. The following is quite different:

Onion Dumplings.—Cook large white onions until tender, drain and scoop out the centers, chop some pieces of cooked ham, add a few bread crumbs and enough mushroom catsup to moisten and fill this stuffing into the onions. Make a mixture as for baked dumplings, cut into squares, put an onion into each, wrap and pinch the edges and bake until the dumpling is brown. Serve with a tomato sauce.

Fried Parsnips.—For those who do not care for sweet vegetables this dish is most acceptable to those who enjoy parsnips. Slice in shoe-string sized pieces, or short lengths, keeping the pieces even in size, wash well and use just the water that clings to them from the washing. Place over an even heat in a heavy aluminum pan with two tablespoonfuls of butter to a pint of the parsnips. Stir often while cooking and toward the last remove to lower heat. Brown well, season with salt and serve. The flavor of the vegetable is preserved in this manner of cooking and is particularly delectable.

Pot Roasted Chicken.—There should be cherished in every family a heavy iron Scotch kettle with an iron cover. One may cook coarse cuts of beef so that they melt in the mouth, in such a utensil. Place a spoonful of butter and lard in the kettle, add the chicken cut up or if small, in halves; cover and cook slowly, adding a few drops of water as it dries and perhaps a little more butter. When thoroughly brown add a cupful of boiling water and simmer until tender. To make the gravy remove the chicken and thicken the sauce with flour. When of the required thickness add one-half cupful of cream and a bit of brown coloring if the flour was not well browned. Serve the chicken with the gravy.

Mushroom Timbales.—Cook one cupful of chopped fresh mushrooms in a tablespoonful of butter for three minutes, add one-half cupful of bread crumbs and another tablespoonful of butter, cook two minutes, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of milk, two slightly beaten eggs and pour into buttered timbal molds. Cook in water until the mixture is set. Unmold and serve with a cream sauce.

IN BAD HEALTH FOR SIX YEARS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Gave Her Strength

Ararapahoe, Okla.—"I want to tell you just what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was in bad health for about six years. My nerves were all to pieces. I could not sleep and wasn't able to do my housework. Now I feel so much better! I sleep like a baby. I can do all my housework, washing and ironing and feel fine all the time. I help my husband some in the field, too, so you see we have something to praise the Vegetable Compound for. I will gladly answer all letters asking about the Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines."—Mrs. LUTHER HIBBS, Box 565, Westwood, California.

Its Advantage

They were discussing the advantages of the various college courses. "So you've decided on an art course instead of a scientific course?" inquired the girl. "Oh, yes," answered the youth, "it seemed the better course for me." Her next question was, "Why?" and his reply to that was, "Well, everybody says it's easier to forget."

Thumb Not "Finger"

Strictly speaking, the thumb should not be referred to as a finger and we have on each hand four fingers and a thumb. The term that refers to all five of the divisions of the hand is digit. However, the word "finger" has come to be used loosely in reference to the four digits and the thumb.

Where Iris Is Found

There are about 875 species of iris. They are chiefly natives of temperate climates. Iris versicolor, the large blue flag, is common in wet places throughout the United States as far west as Minnesota and Arkansas.
